Type of data processed

Browsing data

The IT systems and software procedures for operation of this website acquire, during normal operation, some personal data the transmission of which is implicit in the use of Internet communication protocols. This is information that is not collected to be associated with identified parties concerned, but that by its very nature could, through processing and association with data held by third parties, allow identifying users.

This category of data includes IP addresses or domain names of computers used by users that connect to the website, URI (Uniform Resource Identifier) addresses of the resources requested, the time of the request, the method used to submit the request to the server, the size of the file obtained in response, the numerical code indicating the status of the response from the server (successful, error, etc.) and other parameters regarding the operating system and the user's IT environment.

This data is only used to obtain anonymous statistical information regarding use of the website and to verify its correct operation and is deleted immediately after processing. The data in question may be used to ascertain liability in the event of eventual computer crimes against our website.

Cookies may provide information on browsing within the website and allow the operation of certain services that require identification of the user's browsing through different pages of the website. The cookies in the software applications used are anonymous and may not be traced back to the user's personal data. For any access to the portal regardless of the presence of a cookie, the type of browser (ex. Internet Explorer, Netscape), the operating system (ex. Third-party analytical cookies

Anonymized Monitoring Cookies (Google Analytics)

Our pages use third-party performance cookies, in this case Google Analytics, to allow us to examine the conduct of visitors while using the website and to improve its usability and user experience.

The Guarantor has clarified in the FAQ \(Paragraph 2 - Use of analytical cookies of third parties\) that the Google Analytics cookie, if anonymized, can be considered a technical cookie and therefore not subject to preventive blocking.

In fact, on the website of the Privacy Guarantor it is specified that "... In many cases, however, websites use, for mere statistical purposes, analytical cookies realized and made available by third parties. In these cases, it is believed that the aforementioned websites are not subject to the obligations and fulfilments required by law (notification to the Guarantor in particular) if appropriate tools are adopted to reduce the identifying power of the analytical cookies they use (for example, by masking significant portions of the IP address)...."

Provisions adopted by Demerio Carla sas di Cena Marta & C.to anonymize the monitoring of Google Analytics

In order to anonymously monitor Google Analytics in the integration code, the following instruction has been inserted `ga ('set', 'anonymizeIp', true);` through which the last part of the IP address of the visitor is obscured.

This feature was designed by Google Analytics to help website owners comply with privacy regulations or, in some countries, the recommendations of local data protection authorities, which may prevent the storage of information about complete IP addresses.

IP masking or anonymization occurs as soon as data is received from the Analytics collection network, before any storage or processing takes place. Only in exceptional cases, the IP address will be sent to Google servers and abbreviated within the United States.

For further information, refer to the Google page.

The optional, explicit and voluntary sending of e-mails to addresses with the extension @dittademerio.com indicated on this site or the voluntary submission of data by completing the Contact Form on the website at <http://www.dittademerio.com/contatti.html> involves by its very nature the subsequent acquisition of the sender's address, necessary to respond to requests, as well as any other personal data included in the message. The legal bases of processing are, therefore, the legitimate interest of the Controller to respond to the communications received or the need to process pre-contractual requests made by the party concerned. The data will be kept for the time necessary to fulfil any requests of the sender or issues submitted therein to the Controller and, in any case, for the time required by specific provisions of law. However, it is recalled that the sender has the right to request the cancellation of the same according to the procedures, conditions and limits provided for by article 17 of the GDPR.

We invite our users not to send in their communications names or other personal data of third parties that is not strictly necessary; on the other hand, the use of invented names is much more opportune.
